

What is Loop?

Loop is an innovative way for students to swap textbooks. For example:

- You have book A, but want book B
- John has book B but wants book C
- Terry has book C but wants book A

Loop will discover a trade circle so everyone gets the book they want!

How do you add a trade?

1. Choose what book you are willing to trade. You can search by title, ISBN, author, class name, or professor name
2. Choose the books you would be willing to receive a one to one swap for the book you chose in step 1
3. Submit these preferences - don't worry, these can be edited later!

How do you get your books?

Once Loop detects a possible trade circle, the following will happen:

1. You will get an email notification that a potential trade circle was formed
2. On the Loops webpage, we will show what book you will receive in exchange for the book you are giving up
3. Then, you can choose to accept or decline the trade - everyone in the trade circle must accept for the trade to go through
4. If everyone accepts, you will be put in a group email with the rest of the members of the trade circle, and can facilitate the trade from there
